

Listening to music wasn't always done through CD's, the radio, or an app on your phone. People used to use records and record players to listen to their music. This image shows one type of record player called a gramophone which was created in the 1890's.